POLICE OBTAIN CONFESSION IN GIRL KIDNAPING

Former Convict Said To Have Admitted McElroy Abduction

THREE OTHERS ALSO INVOLVED IN CRIME

Kansas City Official's
Daughter Is Victim
of Kidnapers

(By International News Service)
KANSAS CITY, June 3.—Walter H. McGee, former Oregon convict, was said by police to have confessed today that he was one of the men who kidnaped Miss Mary McElroy, 25, daughter of City Manager H. F. McElroy, a week ago today and collected $30,000 ransom for her release.

Involves Others

Thomas J. Higgins, chief of detectives, said McGee admitted he and Clarence Stevens, now being sought by police, were the actual kidnapers who went to the McElroy home, forced Miss McElroy to leave her bath, dress and accompany them in a motor car.

Higgins said McGee told him, his brother, George McGee, and Clarence Click had acted as guards to the city manager's daughter while she was being held 29 hours in a house near Kansas City, Kas.

Exonerates Johnson

McGee told him, Higgins said, that Wendell Johnson and the others arrested with him in Amarillo, Tex., yesterday, had a part in the abduction, but that he had picked them up in Oklahoma on his way south to aid him in passing part of the $30,000 ransom money paid by McElroy.

Hawks Passenger With Robot Pilot

(By Associated Press)
NEW YORK, June 3.—Los Angeles and New York are only 13 hours, 26 minutes and 15 seconds apart to Frank Hawks.

"When he set down his 'flying laboratory' at Floyd Bennett field, last night, it ended a non-stop solo flight from Los Angeles which broke Hawks' own record by four hours and ten minutes. He established the record four years ago.

While the Hawks' time yesterday is the best for a non-stop cross-continent flight, it is not the swiftest plane time between the two coasts. Captain James Hailzlip spanned the continent last year in 10 hours and 16 minutes, but his flight was not non-stop.

Although Hawks flew alone, he said he was really a "passenger", the plane being handled most of the way by a robot pilot.

Only when darkness came near Butler, Pa., did Hawks take over the controls. His gasoline supply was nearly exhausted as he landed.

At one time during the afternoon, Hawks said he had no idea over what part of the country he was flying, but two hours later he sighted Kansas City and knew that the robot was piloting a straight route.

A great part of the 2,440 mile journey was flown at a height of 10,000 feet.

Schools, Unemployed, Property Relief State's Big Problems

LEWIS OUTLINES ASSEMBLY WORK

Hits Unjust Burden of Taxation Borne By
Real Estate

Addressing more than 100 persons at the Memorial building here, Senator Earl Lewis of St. Clairsville, Republican floor leader, last night classified the school fund crisis, unemployment relief and relief for overburdened real estate as the three major problems now before the Ohio general assembly.

Senator Lewis was a guest of the Salem Business bureau, being brought here by the organization to explain "What the Legislature Is Doing and Why."

R. L. Hutcheson, president of the bureau, presided. Vocal selections were given by Arnold Lutes, accompanied by Mrs. Ruth Berry. Hutcheson presented E. M. Peters who, in turn, introduced the speaker.

Financial Supervision
Among the other important matters to be decided by the legislature, Lewis pointed out, is that of bank building and loan and insurance powers in the state. When the financial crisis arose recently, he said, virtually dictatorial powers were granted the state banking superintendent. "Republicans and Democrats alike supported the measure, with some misgivings, undoubtedly, feeling that immediate action was necessary," Lewis added. "The same power was granted the building and loan superintendent and a similar program was followed with respect to insurance. Among the important decisions to be made by the legislature will be that which either continues these powers or restores the situation to its former status."

The problems of the legislature, Lewis commented, are few and simple, but the viewpoints and plans of legislators are so varied, it is certainly doubtful whether solution will be correspondingly simple.

One of the first problems, he said, is that of school money or rather, lack of it, brought about by failing sources of income arising chiefly from tax delinquencies.

Unemployment Relief was listed as another major problem. "It is

300 Attend Junior-Senior Prom; Rev. B. E. Rutzky Gives Address

Dinner Is Served at Masonic Temple, Followed By Dancing and Other Entertainment

The Junior-Senior prom, an outstanding social function in the closing festivities of the school year for the senior class, was held Friday evening with approximately 300 in attendance, members of the classes, the faculty and guests and members of the board of education and their wives.

The dinner was at the Masonic temple, East State st., and was served by members of Salem chapter No. 334, Order of the Eastern Star.

Flowers and candles were used in the table decorations. The favors were pretty crepe paper dolls, "girls" for the boys of the classes, and "boys" for the girls.

ALUMNI GROUP TO MEET JUNE 16

Att'y Joseph Fawcett and Raymond Fletcher To Give Brief Talks

The program has been completed for the 51st annual reunion and banquet of Salem High School Alumni association, to be held at 6:30 p. m. Friday, June 16, at the Masonic temple.

Brief talks will be given by Att'y Joseph Fawcett of Cleveland and Raymond Fletcher of Portsmouth. The latter will give a toast to outstanding teachers since the High school was started in 1853.

As president of the association, Ralph W. Hawley will preside as toastmaster. The program follows: America, by the assembly; invocation, Rev. Sidney A. Mayer; dinner, with piano music by Charles Freed; welcome to class of 1933, Ralph W. Hawley; response and class gift Gordon Keyes; acceptance of gift and scholarship awards, H. H. Sharp; introduction of scholars and athletes, Principal Wilbur J. Springer; address, Att'y Joseph Fawcett; group singing, led by George W. Dunn; toast to teachers, Raymond Fletcher; announcement of new officers, John H. Carpenter.

This program will be followed by dancing, in charge of Fred M. Campbell. Bolen's orchestra has been engaged.

Arrangements for this reunion have been made by the executive committee, of which John H. Carpenter is chairman. Mrs. W. H. Dunn is chairman of the program committee.

The annual business meeting of the association will be held at 2 p. m. Friday, June 16, at the High school building.

Davis Is Successor To Maurice Maschke

(By Associated Press)
CLEVELAND, O., June 3.—Harry L. Davis, former governor and three times mayor of Cleveland is the new county Republican leader, succeeding the veteran Maurice Maschke.

Davis was chosen chairman of the county central committee, the office Maschke resigned after more than 25 years of guiding his party.

Davis' election came after Maschke argued for defeat of a motion by former City Manager Daniel E. Morgan that election of a leader be postponed until after the fall election.

After the program the group went to the High school gymnasium for dancing.

Gym Is Decorated
The gym was transformed into a beautiful moonlight garden. From the deep blue "sky" which covered the top of the room, the "stars" glistened and the "moon" shed its "light" on the lovely scene.

Another group from the senior class went to the First Friends church for a program of contests and "stunts" in charge of Rev. C. F. Bailey, pastor.

WHAT TO TAX IS PROBLEM ALSO

Legislative Minds Concoct Varied Schemes
To Raise Cash

Tracing the course of Governor White's sales tax proposal and the much discussed coupon feature, as suggested to raise taxes, Senator Earl Lewis, in his address last night, provided an interesting insight into the workings of many of the capital's legislative minds as he reviewed, briefly, a number of proposals to raise money.

The governor's plan ran into a storm of opposition and efforts are now under way to find an adequate substitute.

Sales Taxes Doubtful

However, it is Lewis' opinion that it is doubtful whether any sales tax can pass the senate or the house.

What to tax?
That's the chief problem of the legislators, apparently, and their thoughts are portrayed in the following suggestions, as outlined by Senator Lewis:

The adoption of an intangibles tax amending act, raising the rate on intangibles from five to six per cent, and diverting six million to the schools. The one per cent raise, it is estimated, would net two million, but would probably also net plenty of opposition, Lewis commented, in view of the previous promise there would be no raise if everyone would bring their intangibles out into the light.

A raise of tax rate on deposits in financial institutions, estimated to yield $2,850,000.

Income tax on earned incomes over $750 for single persons, $1,500 for married, with allowances for dependents, at the rate of one per cent on the first taxable $1,000; and 6 per cent on all over $6,000; estimated to bring 10 million dollars five of which would go to the state and five to local subdivisions.

Repeal the cigarette law; estimated four-million-dollar yield.

Tax on Beer
Two-cent tax on bottled beer caps; estimated six-million-dollar yield. Lewis discussed this at length, explaining the fact that counterfeiting sections could be embodied in the legislature.

LYON WILL HEAR LAFATCH'S CASE

Mahoning Jurist To Sit
In Hearing Scheduled
June 19

The hearing of James LaFatch, 22, of Akron, indicted by the April grand jury on a charge of high way robbery in the holdup two months ago of the Peoples Drug store in Salem, will be held before Judge J. H. C. Lyon of Youngstown in common pleas court, Lisbon, on Monday, June 19.

Announcement that Judge Lyon will be at the county seat to hear the case was made in Lisbon today by Common Pleas Judge W. F. Lones who expects to exchange benches with Lyon and hear cases scheduled in the Mahoning common pleas court.

LaFatch, allegedly identified in police lineups at the Salem city jail by drug store employees as one of three men who held them up and escaped with more than $90 in money, will be defended by three former county prosecuting attorneys. They are Charles G. McCorkhill, former Carroll county prosecutor, and John E. Bauknecht and Robert M. Brookes, former Columbiana county prosecutors.

Prosecuting Attorney George L. LaFerty and his assistant, Frank W. Springer, will represent the state.

LaFatch, in preliminary arraignment before Mayor John M. Davidson, entered a plea of not guilty and is now free on $7,500 bond.

Farm Bureau Fete Scheduled June 13

The Columbiana county farm bureau banquet will be held Tuesday evening, June 13, at the Lisbon Presbyterian church, instead of June 7, as previously announced.

A change in the date was made so that the bureau might have V. L. Everson, manager of the Farm Bureau Oil company for its speaker.

Recalls 'Good Old Days' at Party On His 90th Birthday

Leonard Butz

LEONARD BUTZ HONORED HERE

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Babb
Entertain for Latter's Father

Leonard Butz, who celebrated his 90th birthday anniversary Friday at the home of his only daughter, Mrs. Harold Babb, Vine ave., has been a member of the Salem Christian church for 42 years and a member of the choir for more than half a century.

Mr. Butz, who is unusually active and alert for a person of his years, seldom misses church when the weather is favorable. He sang in the choir last Sunday.

To make happy his natal day, the choir had a covetous supper in his honor last evening at the church. Places were arranged for 38 guests at five tables. The tables were filled with flowers, peonies, yellow lilies and iris. On Mr. Butz's table there was a lovely birthday cake, a gift from the choir.

From 2 until 6 p. m. Friday, Mr. and Mrs. Babb kept "open house" and a number of friends called. Mr. Butz was the recipient of a shower of greeting cards and gifts.

Recalls Boyhood Days
What is now New Guilford park, was the playground for Mr. Butz in his boyhood days. A son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Butz, he was born June 2, 1843, at Cold Run, east of Guilford, near what was then known as the "Little Reservoir."

Among the many interesting incidents of the early days recalled by Mr. Butz, was the time when the breast of the dam at the "Little Reservoir" broke, flooding the property on lower ground, in its course to the Ohio river, his family escaping because of the fact that their home was on high ground. On the day that the water broke, he was visiting his grandmother, and it was while the family was seated at the dinner table, that one in the group, hearing the crash, expressed the opinion that the "reservoir had broken." Men went on horse back to warn the people of the coming danger.

Mr. Butz came to Salem from Neward. A carpenter by vocation, he has worked on a number of

Clues Are Lacking In Hunt For Child

(By Associated Press)
CINCINNATI, June 3.—Police said today they had exhausted every clue and knew no further for the missing 5-week old daughter of jobless John Sneed and his wife, Madeline.

There were suggestions that the child might have been taken by a woman determined to attempt medical experiments of her own, or might have been taken to satisfy an urge for motherhood.

"We have exhausted our clues," said Emmett D. Kirgan, chief of detectives. "The case is as baffling today as it was Wednesday noon when the infant was reported missing."

Two possible clues Friday, both involving women, were run down and proved groundless by my men. We have nothing else to work on until something new develops."

But to make sure, he ordered his investigators to go over all the ground again, questioning every possible witness once more.

Examiners Inspect Records of County
LISBON, June 3.—Having completed examination of official records of Mahoning county, State Examiners F. W. Preston and O. G. Walker will immediately begin an audit of records of the office of County Treasurer John C. Litty.

Examination of records of other offices will follow. The last examination of county records here was completed two years ago. Mr. Walker assisting in the audit during that period.

Adopted Daughter At Side
With him were his adopted daughter, Margaret Farrell Muldoon, his former secretary, whom he adopted two years ago when he realized that his death was not far distant, and his physician, Dr. Henry T. Kelly, long a personal friend. He was conscious almost to the moment of his death.

It was his request that no church ceremonies be held over his body, that there be no flowers, and no pall bearers, so a few of his friends will gather at his home in a day or so—the date has not been definitely set—and escort him to his final resting place in a mausoleum at Kensico in the Westchester Hills.

During his career Muldoon was a drummer boy in the Civil war, a former Graeco-Roman wrestling champion of the world, ex-actor, and czar of boxing in this state.

He was a farm boy, sturdy and 15, when he enlisted for the war between the states. His next regular job was on the New York police force. From there he went to professional wrestling, which took him on a tour of the world.

Then came the business of training prize fighters. John L. Sullivan, Boston strong boy, was "lamed" by

PRESSURE

The general assembly goes into the last week before its tentative adjournment date, June 8, under terrific pressure. The major part of its work remains to be done. Its most controversial issue, taxation, remains open. The biennial budget has not yet been adopted. Schools have not been given the assistance they must have if they are to function next term. Obviously, adjournment by next Thursday would be a miracle.

Apparently, the senate has no intention of trying to perform it. It has authorized its taxation committee to conduct an audit of state funds in order to provide a definite foundation for a tax plan. Results of the audit will not be available until the end of the week. There will remain then the problem of constructing a tax program. It is difficult to see how adjournment can come for at least another week, perhaps two.

Gov. White's tax program, calling for a sales tax and an income tax, has been rejected. The sales tax, apparently, is dead. The income tax, which has met new opposition as the result of revelations currently being made in Washington of its failure to draw revenue from the wealthy, still has a chance, but a slim one. The assembly's position is an awkward one; it has rejected the only tangible program for a substitute that doesn't exist.

Lacking sufficient pressure from the executive source to make it move, the legislature will have to submit itself to the pressure of time, in the form of tentative adjournment dates. The prospect of satisfactory legislation passed by this means is not bright, but it is no worse than the prospect has been since the assembly convened at the first of the year. The impression given by the state house this year is unmistakably that of ineptitude in the presence of conditions which called for a great deal more than the mediocrity which has become the rule. The scramble to undo what procrastination has done will deepen the impression.

The Stars Say:

For Sunday, June 4

Sunday's horoscope is a particularly interesting one for the clergy, as well as for mystical, cultural, literary and social pursuits and avocations. There may be a definite leaning to these as well as to emotional or sentimental expression in the romantic affiliations. Great progress in some direction is seen.

These whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year of substantial progress, showing in accumulated possessions through industry, character, favoritism of elders, and possibly through peculiar gifts, talents or relations. Singular angles seem to complexion affairs. Make changes carefully and safeguard the funds. A child born on this day may be greatly gifted in many directions, and also may be practical and dependable. It should succeed signally in practical as well as intellectual and social activities and contacts.

For Monday, June 5

Monday's astrological forecast is a rather dubious one, with much prospect of entanglements, complications and problems, but not without its eventful and pleasant adventures. The latter may bring a sensational development to romantic affiliations, or there may be some occult, peculiar or intriguing condition to cope with. Shun extravagance, reckless or impetuous moves or contracts, sign papers with caution and be on guard against slander and fraud.

Those whose birthday it is are confronted by a rather unusual year, which may tax all their ingenuity, discretion and good judgment, as there are signs of singular contacts, strange experiences, intrigues, slanders and possibly sensational developments in both private and business associations. Shun extravagance and be cautious in all directions.

A child born on this day may be clever, ambitious and given to the unusual and spectacular, but may have an eventful life.

CAMP FOR WOMEN
MERRY WALL STREET
RAKE AND FLARE

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1933 By King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

THANKS to Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and Miss Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, girls and women, unemployed and unmarried, from 16 to 45 years of age will have an opportunity to enter camps and earn a living until times improve. Some women, who applied, past 50 and not eligible, "wept bitterly." For women past 50 the world does the least and should do the most.

COMMANDER FRANK HAWKS, flying from Los Angeles to New York, "non-stop," sat quietly, hands idle, and watched a "robot pilot" run the machine.

Twenty-five years ago few would believe that airships could ever really fly. Suppose you had suggested that they would fly, piloted and controlled by a "robot" or artificial man. What would have been said? Men can do whatever they can imagine, and many things more.

YESTERDAY was the "maddest, merriest day of all the glad new year" 1933, in Wall Street. Stocks rose from $1 to $10 a share. "Big Steel" really began to be big once more, passing $54 a share. Only a little while ago, poor old "Big Steel" was drifting around $23 a share, and lower. It is the solemn truth that "hope is stronger than memory."

And think of the happy smiling faces of brokers, when they saw stocks selling for a while at 3,000,000 shares an hour, with total sales for the day 6,500,000 shares.

Sorrow is in the hearts of those that sold their stock exchange seats too cheap, and hope is reborn for those that predicted seats at $1,000,000 each.

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS says "the navy department has ordered greater 'rake' and 'flare' in enlisted men's caps. They must have the 'required rake in the crown' and the sides must be 'padded' to give the required flare."

All that is intensely satisfactory. Words cannot express our joy, learning that our enlisted navy men will no longer wear caps which lack rake and flare. That being settled, perhaps those in charge of government defense will look into the matter of airplanes, and get a little more "rake" in that direction. That would be appreciated.

ALL NEWSPAPER men and the whole country will learn, with regret of the very serious illness of Cyrus H. K. Curtis, who is 83 years old, and said to be "very ill."

Mr. Curtis is suffering from the after effects of a severe heart attack, which occurred a year ago. He has been a long honorable life of useful work. He has made many friends, no enemies.

New Serum For Typhus

In my mail today I received two unusual letters. One letter requested information about typhus fever. The other was a report of recent work on this disease conducted by the United States public health service and the Mexican government. Announcement was made of the discovery of a serum which protects against a certain form of typhus fever.

This is of special interest to the inhabitants of Mexico and the citizens of the southern states. In this territory typhus fever is still prevalent. This is one of the most deadly diseases known to mankind. It is always associated with filth and unsanitary surroundings. It was especially prevalent when little was known about sanitation and wretched living conditions were common.

Often Confused With Typhoid Typhus fever is often confused with typhoid fever. But the diseases are quite different and run different courses. Typhus fever is carried by a germ found in rats. It is carried from one rat to another by rat lice and fleas. It is transmitted to humans by fleas.

Typhoid fever is caused by a germ called the "bacillus typhosus." This is found in contaminated food, milk and water supplies. Like typhus fever, the disease at one time was prevalent throughout the world. Fortunately, we have a vaccine called the typhoid vaccine which prevents the disease. Due to proper supervision of food, water and milk and the use of typhoid vaccine, the disease is now rarely encountered.

For many years experimental research has endeavored to discover a vaccine for typhus fever similar to the vaccine successfully used against typhoid fever. It is hoped that the announcement of the new typhus fever vaccine will aid in the eradication of this disease.

Cleanliness Essential Of course typhus fever can be prevented by improvement in social conditions and the destruction of dark, crowded tenements and unsanitary homes. Like many other diseases, the prevention of typhus fever is largely a matter of personal cleanliness. It is for this reason that the disease has greatly decreased as civilization and education have spread over the face of the earth.

Let us hope for the continued success of those scientists who daily labor in their efforts to make this world a cleaner and safer place in which to live. Their success will lead to the ultimate wiping out of typhus fever and other dreaded diseases.

RELIGION AND BUSINESS

The general conference of the United Brethren church passed a resolution in which it is held that vital Christianity is the only real remedy for the world's social ills. If the American people had lived up to the religious principles they profess, if they had avoided the grasping spirit that got the world into trouble, we should have had no industrial depression and little unemployment.

We had less grasping for gold, and more golden rule treating other people as we would like to be treated ourselves, business would run better than it ever has before. —Newark Advocate.

New York

Day
by
Day

By O. O. McINTYRE.

NEW YORK, June 3.—My friend, a philosopher, urged a variation of routine as a mental perk. New York and its treadmill routine, he declared, has a way of jangling us into a corner. Now and then one should cast off the shackles. Do something different! So I left a call for 4 a. m.

The city at such an hour is a blur of grey-lit. The people you see have expressions smudged with sleep. Even slinking cats have lost the thrill of vicarious romance. In the winey exultation of morning air I stood on a curb gazing up and down the chamed street.

A policeman somersaulting his night stick at the end of his leather loop sauntered around the corner. He approached with slight suspicion that seemed allayed by a casual glance, and moseyed on. A taxi unloaded a bewildered young couple at the Waldorf, across the way.

In making his turn, the driver winked and thumb-jerked toward them: "Just looked to Greenwich!" They looked delightedly nuptial. New lives starting with a new day. As a stern partisan of reality, I wondered what the groom's salary was and how long before that first disillusioning quartet!

Over by the side of Grand Central red caps were chirping in liveliness to and fro. One had been to a ball in Harlem. "Formalest you ever see" he was explaining. "Not even a tuxedo." In the great rotunda two sailors were propped against each other in sound snoring. A gentleman in bright, squeaky tan shoes puffing a cigar—and what a horrible hour to smoke!—was strolling up and down. Through a half-opened door of a telephone booth a woman was shouting: "It's in the second drawer of the bureau. Mail it to me at Fall River, Goodbye!" Someone was yelling a train to Harrisburg, Altoona and Umfrayam—yaaa. An attendant shook two weary casualties and they eeled toward train gates.

I'm one of life's innocents who cannot resist a weighing machine that catapults a fortune card upon registering weight. The beam quivered and came to a dead stop at 158, a gain of two pounds, and the card read: "You have remarkable talents for mechanics and inventions of all sort." Extravagant eulogy for a mug unable to fill a fountain pen or insert a new typewriter ribbon!

There's a fascination in the arcade of cubicle shops chinked in disarray of a long tunnel. In a window of bright-jacketed books a card announces: "For laughs read Wodehouse. For romance, Kathleen Norris. For mystery, E. Phillips Oppenheim. But for peace of soul, Edwin Arlington Robinson." And bulwarked by such reflections I emerged into the early andante furiosa of brilliant hotels surrounding the station. Daylight streaked the skies.

American railroad stations should be more deeply appreciated. There is hurry, but not the feverish pluckings of other countries. Touts do not harry one, interpreters dog your steps or arch-rascals slyly flash pornographic postcards under their coat lapels. And where the world over may one behold the vaulted and azure depths of the Grand Central's starry ceiling?

The dull rose tint of the Murray Hill hotel with its square and beautifully blue lamps out front is the back-log in the dying blaze of another day's aristocracy—an emotional nexus with crinolines, sidebar buggies and sparkling bays. It's serene in the shimmer of sun-up and its spacious and venerable lobby suggests the snap of ivory snuff-boxes and eyes behind the fan.

I tried to choose between breakfast and a barbershop. I blew hot at the prospective tangle of steaming towels and drifted for the first time in years into one across from the station. This was flirting with tonsorial gypsies—clip shops nestle near terminals—but I must have looked urban for the shave and massage was 55 cents. And I talked

HOLY TRINITY ENGLISH LUTHERAN

East State street at Woodland ave., Rev. George D. Keister, pastor. Festival of Pentecost—Whit Sunday.

Sunday school 9:45 (Acts 2:1-21) Paul Wilms, Supt.

The Holy Spirit is the Third Person of the Trinitarian God. His work is often passed by as not very important. His part in the work of the Kingdom is frequently forgotten.

Such an attitude is not the proper one. Jesus, our Savior placed much emphasis upon the work and ministry of the Holy Spirit. He was to occupy a prominent position in the early Church and the Church down through the ages. The waiting disciples were anxiously waiting for the promised Comforter. He came as promised. His blessing upon them was evidenced in the mighty power of conquest that was given to them after the descent of the Holy Spirit on the day of Pentecost. The Church or person that more completely follows out the will and purpose of God, is the possessor of the Holy Spirit.

Morning worship 11:00. Sermon: "The Holy Spirit's Work." God never does unnecessary work. The efficiency of the labors of God cannot be questioned. There are no needless phases in the progress of the work of God. The Holy Spirit was not given to the disciples just that they might be encouraged by His presence. There was a definite contribution that they could expect from him. Jesus said that He was to be their instructor. Their knowledge was very limited then. Never was it perfect. The Holy Spirit was to teach and instruct them. Thus could they bear the good tidings to far off countries and to men and women of much learning and education. The disciples had forgotten much of Jesus' instruction. Some of it had made little impression upon them. Here was part of the task of the Holy Spirit. The spoken words of Jesus were to be made fresh and new to them. Luther League 6:30.

The Luther League devotional topic is "What is the Church?" George Wukotich is the leader.

PENTECOSTAL

Corner East Pershing and Penn. G. E. Doby, pastor.

Sunday Services

Sabbath school at 2 p. m. Leo A. Smith, Supt.; Mrs. Ada Pierce. Adult Bible class teacher; Miss Anna Schenker, Young People's class leader. Mrs. Doby, leader of children class.

Our lesson for this Sabbath is taken from the 14th chapter of Mark 10; to the 72 verses. The topic of our lesson being, "The Lord Jesus Christ Faces Betrayal and Denial."

In this lesson we see our Lord Jesus mounting as it were the loftiest peak scaled by Him in His entire earthly walk. At this particular time He knew His work was all but completed. For years He had been training by His loving precept and perfect example these apostles which He had chosen. And yet we find that they had not as yet crucified their own, fleshy desires.

That seems to be the great hindrance in our Christian experience today, we are not willing to make the sacrifices necessary for us to make in order to go on unto perfection. The leading thought which is brought out in this lesson is that we should humbly pray that we ourselves may not as individuals deny Him as Peter did or betray Him as Judas did.

We invite you to come and study this lesson with us.

Preaching at 3 p. m. and again at 7:30 p. m. Sunday. The pastor will preach on "Pentecost."

The Golden Text was: "Great and marvellous are thy works, Lord God Almighty; just and true are thy ways, thou King of saints." (Rev. 15:3).

Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "Every word of God is pure; he is a shield unto them that put their trust in him." (Proverbs 30:5).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy: "To hold yourself superior to sin, because God made you superior to it and governs man, is true wisdom. To fear sin is to misunderstand the power of love and the divine science of being in man's relation to God—to doubt His government and distrust His omnipotent care. To hold yourself superior to sickness and death is equally wise, and is in accordance with divine science. To fear them is impossible, when you fully apprehend God and know that they are no part of His creation."

HOME MAKING HELPS

A Bride Shops For Furniture.
No shopping offers so many pitfalls as that done by those ecstatic brides as they wander through furniture stores selecting pieces for that longed-for home of their own. For our young couple is usually anxious to furnish the home completely, as they have visualized it instead of being wise enough to concentrate on essentials, leaving it to the years to completely furnish a home. Those who tell us that our moderns like to begin where their parents left off, are not so wrong when it comes to home furnishings.

Don't Buy Too Cheaply.
Just now the market is filled with cheaply constructed furniture, pieces well enough made and nicely styled that, unfortunately will not stand up for any length of time. Our wise June bride will go to a reputable store. There she will find fine pieces of furniture that will grow with her household, that will still be lovely when they have moved from that little house or tiny one-room apartment to more commodious quarters. They will be able to build around these fine pieces of furniture while gingham pieces will have to be discarded.

When Buying Rugs.
Be wise, furnish with the essentials. Don't buy a cheap rug, if you can't afford a good original or an expensive domestic copy. Buy rather two or three really good small rugs, scatter rugs, that, later on, after the good rug has worn, will be found still doing duty in the foyer or in a bedroom. For good rugs last and always look rich, while a cheap large carpet will be threadbare and ugly in no time, an utter waste of money.

Just now, cheap living room suites abound furniture that looks nice enough, but that wears miserably. Ornate carving, and gaily patterned coverings will conceal the bad construction, the poor wood. It will do for a while, of course, but it won't be long before it is realized that the money paid for it has been wasted. But a really good sofa, bought from a place specializing in fine things will look good for many, many years in the finest home. Fine construction, good woods, tell their own story in years of service. As long as the frame and construction are good, a sofa can always be re-upholstered and so gain a new lease on life. The same applies to chairs.

A Dining Bridge Table.
And better than a cheap dining table is a really good substantial bridge table. When the real table is at last installed in the home, the bridge table will be able to go back to its real job of being a fine bridge table, while a cheaply constructed table will have fallen to pieces and so not have justified its original cost. So then, expend your money on essential furniture that is well made, for in that way you will have a nucleus about which to build and your outlay will not be wasted. There are usually enough trifles such as pictures and lamps amongst the wedding presents to take care of these things, so don't buy these things until all your nice relatives and friends have contributed their gifts.

WHITEFISH. Mont.—Ducks recently won a complete victory in a war with muskrats along the Whitefish river, near here, according to J. Q. Morgan. Morgan said a pair of ducks routed a large muskrat from a log in a lagoon after a brief skirmish, and thus gained an uncontested right to use the log for nesting purposes.

The Modern Bridesmaid

Wears a Frock That Can Be Worn On Other Occasions, Too

By MARIE MAROT

FANCY DRESS Dreaden shepherdess frocks for bridesmaids are a thing of the past. The tendency today is to dress the bridal party in frocks that can be worn for many occasions afterwards, especially as dinner frocks. Chiffon, organdie or mousseline de sole frocks cut on the lines of this season's dinner clothes, made with capes, jackets and some kind of sleeves and in wearable colors, will bring delight to any bridesmaid's heart.

Pastel blues, soft greens, rose pink, a sunny yellow, all register strongly for summer evening clothes this year, and all are good as wedding hues. Easy to match in bouquets and slippers.

In the frock at the left the tulle ruching above the neckline could be removed, making it a most attractive and useful frock. The tulle trim of the tiny flower toque could be kept intact, if desired, for restaurant wear. The other frock is ideal for evening, just as is. A capelet veils the décolletage and the shirrings in triangular sections are graceful. The hat with tulle brim could be worn for any afternoon or informal evening occasion.

Try These New Potato Dishes

Potatoes served day after day, either boiled, mashed or baked are apt to become rather wearisome. And French fried, too, served often, cease to be exciting. So why not find some new methods of dealing with that most useful of all vegetables, the potato. Why not make it interesting, so that even those who won't eat it in its ordinary boiled, baked or mashed form, will welcome it.

To this end, I have collected some really delicious potato dishes that will make this valuable vegetable even more popular with the family.

Why not, then, make potatoes au gratin for dinner this week? Have some hot mashed potatoes, or if you prefer it, some baked potatoes scooped from their skins. Season well with butter, salt, pepper, grated Parmesan cheese and a little cream. If you are using the baked potatoes, refill the jackets with the mixture and garnish with sprigs of parsley. For the mashed potato fill some baking shells with the mixture, smooth the top, sprinkle buttered crumbs thickly over each shell and bake till a golden brown. Or old potatoes, left over, can be sliced, placed in layers, sprinkled thickly with Parmesan, coated with a good white sauce, sprinkled with egg and crumbs and then baked for 15 minutes. A nice luncheon dish and economical, too, since it yields a main dish out of left-overs.

Potatoes and Chopped Ham

Here's a dish that is a favorite with the men folk. Add to a pound of boiled, mashed potatoes, a quarter of a pound of chopped ham, a chopped and cooked onion, salt, pepper, a bit of grated nutmeg and the yolks of two eggs. Mix well and shape into balls. Brush with a little melted butter and sprinkle with bread crumbs. Brown well in hot oven. Another tasty dish is made by boiling some potatoes and spinach separately. When cooked, mash the potatoes, strain the spinach well and chop finely.

Mix potatoes and spinach well together with a little butter, salt and pepper to taste. Place in well-buttered dish and allow to stand in a very hot oven for ten minutes or so. Nice for those who won't eat their allotment of spinach.

QUINCY, Mass. — Fred Speldell was fined $10 on a charge of drunkenness here recently. It was testified that shortly after he had started on a fishing trip with several friends he jumped overboard. After his companions rescued him, he dived into the sea again, police said, and finally he was towed ashore, lashed to a mooring post, and authorities notified.

LEWIS OUTLINES ASSEMBLY WORK

Hits Unjust Burden of Taxation Borne By Real Estate

estimated now," Lewis said, "that approximately 262,000 families, or one-fifth the total population of the state, are on charity. The committee has met the situation to date. There has been no starvation and starvation must not be permitted in the future."

"Governor White" originally estimated $30,000,000 to take care of relief, divided equally in funds from the state, the R. F. C., and private sources. This estimate necessarily has been increased.

"The third problem, tying in with the others, is relief for real estate from oppressive taxation.

"The intangibles law passed some time ago by the assembly was designed to achieve that purpose—take some of the load off real estate. In normal times, it probably would have succeeded, but it came about when the depression was starting and it has disappointed to date. The sum of $18,000,000 would have been brought in by the law, the experts say, if former conditions had prevailed.

Have Capital Levy

"The situation is, substantially, that we have what amounts to a capital levy on real estate—in other words, a levy that takes all the principal and also digs into the principal."

Lewis took occasion to denounce a proposal recently raised in the assembly to make county treasurers receivers for properties delinquent in taxes.

Municipalities, too, he said, are facing, in many places, problems greatly similar to those of the individual taxpayer.

As one means of going about the task of solving some of these problems, Lewis referred to his own bill calling for a scaling down of government costs to the minimum and the building of a financial program based thereon.

Lewis referred to the fact that an audit now is under way of state books to determine just how the various funds stood and the figures on this will probably be available the latter part of the week.

Lewis suggested that the heads of the major departments of the state scan closely their own departments and then wield the axe where necessary, with the object of getting to bed rock in expense.

However, with legislators of both parties criticizing the bill, he pointed out, for political reasons, the speaker predicted he would be surprised if the measure succeeded.

Bad weather had held him at the field for several days. Meantime he whipped himself into shape for the ordeal, one of the most severe ever faced by a flier, by daily sessions with punching bag and rowing machine.

Shopping with YOURSELF

IN MANY of our larger cities shopping has become a profession. Experienced women who know the stores and shops, who know merchandise and values have gone into business as "Shopping Guides."

To a stranger, a trip with one of these professional shoppers is a great saver of time and trouble. No matter what the visitor wishes, her Shopping Guide knows just where to go—for quality, materials, styles, sizes, prices, specialties.

And where do these professionals get their information? They are probably the world's most conscientious and thorough readers of daily newspaper advertisements.

Clever? Yes! But any woman can be just as smart. Just turn to the advertisements in this paper and let them be your Shopping Guide. No professional shopper can take you to more reliable or smarter shops than the ones that advertise in this paper. No professional shopper can give you such accurate or intimate details about merchandise, about newness, about style, about quality, about bargains.

The merchants and manufacturers who advertise in this paper are dependable. You can believe in their statements. They have spent their money to tell you what their expert buyers know to be the truth about the merchandise they have selected for you. Their salespeople know their goods intimately.

Study the advertisements. Make a list of the things you need and the stores where they may be had. Be your own professional shopper.

CHAPTER FIFTY-THREE

He went away through the wind and rain, and met Ursula Brandon's carriage at the cross-roads of the river. The wheels were mud-splashed, the horses drenched. Wolfe signalled to the coachman to stop. A window clattered down, and a pale face looked up at him. He spoke, bending forward in the saddle.

"Where you coming to the meadow?"

"Yes. What is it?"

"I wonder whether you will lend me your carriage for an hour?"

"Of course. Is anyone ill?"

"Jesse Masca. I am going to take the child home."

Ursula Brandon's eyelids flickered.

"Tell Reynolds to drive on."

She closed the window, lay back in her corner, and watched the wet and wind-blown pollard willows gliding by. Her face remained haughtily meditative. Presently a smile broke out, a smile in which cynicism and compassion were merged together.

Wolfe rode on ahead, taking the wind-driven rain straight in his face. He was wet through by the time he reached the meadow. The shadowy opening in the grey tent was like a distant rent in the world of his desires. The "Pardons" horses came squealing over the grass while Wolfe was tethering Turpin to a tent peg. He turned in time to open the carriage door, Ursula Brandon stepping past him in profile. She entered the tent, and Wolfe heard her speaking to Jesse her voice slightly above the level of its usual dignity.

"You ought to have told me, child, that you were feeling ill. My carriage is going to take you home."

"It's kind of you. I wouldn't go, only—"

"Yes, he is quite right. Good-bye. You have been such a great help here."

Jesse came out with a red shawl over her head, and found Wolfe waiting in the rain. His black coat gleamed wet.

"John, you are soaked!"

"Not a bit of it."

He helped her into the carriage. "Go home and change your clothes."

"Nonsense. I am coming up to the farm, first."

He slammed the door upon her protest, mounted Turpin, and rode on ahead.

Moor Farm and its trees struggled with a squall of wind and grey, smoking rain. Wolfe fastened the paddock gate back, and reached house a quarter of a mile ahead of the "Pardons" carriage. He left Turpin at the gate and walked straight into the house.

"Well, John?"

"Mother, Jesse is a little feverish. I have brought her back here. It may be nothing."

"H, they be comin' out."

The old men lined the wall and watched the Guardians appear. Robert Flemming came first, bare-headed, stately, carrying on his shoulders the dignity of some good thing done. He turned to shake hands with Crump, Crump, whose little eyes twinkled with cynical amusement. It had been hot and argumentative, and voluble in there!

"Well, sir—it's to be reform! We couldn't stand out when the Brandon influence came your way, Jasper Turrell? Oh, well, there would have been a majority anyway."

The old soldier's eyes were watching for John Wolfe.

"That be he! He's whacked 'em, he's drove 'em with the bayonet. That's a fine feller. He ought to have bin in the army."

Wolfe came out with a little man on either side of him. The little men were talking with animation, triumph. Some moral battle had been fought and won, and they were jubilant, flushed, conscious of plump altruism. There were sulky faces here and there, puzzled faces, faces that totted up figures and calculated the cost. A minority had fought and vanquished a majority, yoked them in, and made them serve.

"He's a fine feller. He ought to have bin a soldier."

Wolfe mounted Turpin and rode away in the thick of a scurry of yellow leaves. The black horse was in proud fettle. There was a smell of victory in the air; a throwing open of gates, a surrendering of keys. Men might have seen Wolfe riding into Navestock, a great soldier entering a captured town. There was something dramatic about it. Common men touched their hats.

Old Crabbe was parading in his garden when Wolfe brought him the news. The tall poplars shivered against a clear, cold sky. Somewhere a weed fire was burning, and the pungent scent filled the air.

"We have captured their outworks, sir!"

"What, a majority? Don't tell me those fellows have decided on reform!"

"They have, after a good deal of squabbling. The honour lies with Robert Flemming. He hit out, and the wobblers went down."

"Incredible!"

"They're bin in yonder an hour, I guess."

"An' Turpin be un'nt there!"

"Nor Wilks, nor bully Johnson, nor por o' Muster Hubbard!"

"They do say as the new fellows be with Muster Flemming and the doctor. Threadgold ain't there."

"Pap Threadgold's busted—th' old windsucker."

"Did yer see the doctor?"

The last words were spoken by the one-legged man with the clay pipe. Blue-nosed and white-headed, he had the look for the old soldier, an ancient Odysseus to whom these antique, pastoral worthies listened with sober awe.

"Did yer see the doctor? He ought to have bin a soldier."

"What makes ye think that?"

"Ridin' up on that black horse o' his, jus' like the ol' Duke, with his leathery sharp face, and his nose a'mellin' the enemy. Kind of proud and quiet and fierce. He's a fighter; he's a bayonet boy!"

An ancient came and kicked the toes of his boots against the wall to shake off the soil.

Kidnaping At Fine Arts Stage in Kansas City Case

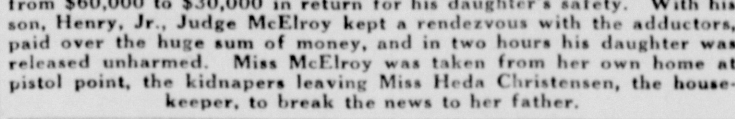

MARY McElroy

The manner in which the kidnaping and ransom negotiations for the release of Miss Mary McElroy, daughter of City Manager Henry F. McElroy of Kansas City, were carried out lifts the cowardly crime of abduction and places it among the fine arts. Although Miss McElroy's father is the executive head of Kansas City's police force, he was powerless to do anything except meet the kidnappers' demands. The best he could do was to induce the criminals to lower their demands from $60,000 to $30,000 in return for his daughter's safety. With his son, Henry, Jr., Judge McElroy kept a rendezvous with the abductors, paid over the huge sum of money, and in two hours his daughter was released unharmed. Miss McElroy was taken from her own home at pistol point, the kidnappers leaving Miss Heda Christensen, the housekeeper, to break the news to her father.

The wires and poles will be sold as junk, but the tracks will not be removed for a while. George L. Smith, service director, said the Baltimore & Ohio refused to claim ownership with the knowledge the city would want the tracks removed, which would cost $50,000.

ZAMORA HIT IN CHURCH RULING

Spain's President, Other Officials, Are Excommunicated

(By Associated Press) MADRID, June 3.—President Alcala Zamora, members of the Spanish cabinet, and all deputies favoring the new religious congregations law, were excommunicated from the Catholic church today.

Under the law, which became effective today with its publication in the official gazette, religious orders enrolling 38,000 nuns and monks became civil societies subject to taxation and art treasures worth millions reverted to the state today with the publication of the new religious congregation law.

The measure, condemned by Spanish church officials and passed by parliament, became a law yesterday with the signature of President Alcala Zamora.

Providing for the confiscation of art objects such as architecturally famous temples, altar pieces, paintings, and crucifixes belonging to religious groups, the law marks another step in the controversy between the church and the state.

The law provides that no educational work, other than theological, may be conducted by the religious orders, and the organizations must pay taxes, a burden from which they hitherto have been free.

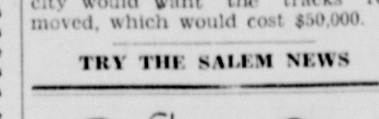

A protest statement from church officials called the measure a "grave outrage against the divine rights of the church."

Seize Property

TROY, O., June 3.—The city is going to confiscate the property formerly used by the Dayton and Troy Traction company because no one will claim ownership.

The wires and poles will be sold as junk, but the tracks will not be removed for a while. George L. Smith, service director, said the Baltimore & Ohio refused to claim ownership with the knowledge the city would want the tracks removed, which would cost $50,000.

THE DAY IN SPORTS

BUCKEYE AMATEUR YOUNGSTERS ENTERED

BY JAMES L. KENICK,

Associated Press Sports Writer

THE GOLFING bluebirds of Ohio are working out for the 30th annual of the Buckeye amateur championship.

A list of those who will be on deck at the Springfield Country club the week of June 19 looks like a page torn from the roster of champions.

Champion and ex-champions; youngsters who bang away with every weapon in their bag; conservative old fellows who play 'em close to their vest, as the saying is in the locker room, will be included in the list of those seeking to qualify.

Here is a partial glimpse of the way the tournament sizes up now, more than a halfmonth before the opening date:

Johnny Fischer, Cincinnati, national intercollegiate and Big Ten champion medalist in the national amateur a year ago; one of the 30 low scorers in the national open last summer.

Maurice McCarthy, Jr., Cleveland, former national collegiate champion, and one-time runner-up to Bobby Jones, for the national amateur.

Eddie Hamant, Dayton, the Ohio intercollegiate champion, and one of the best club welders among the state's younger players.

Johnny Florio, Columbus, the defending state champion and former Ohio State university golf team captain, won the title for the second time last year at Portage.

Bobby Servis, Dayton, runner-up to Florio last year and runner-up this year for the state interscholastic championship; a grand shot-maker for a youngster.

Scotty Beston, Springfield, the state public links champion in 1930, and 1931; runner-up for the state amateur title in 1931; former university of Illinois golf captain; a national intercollegiate figure.

Dick O'Brien, Springfield, a stalwart young man who, in an exhibition there last season, defeated Gene Sarazen and Tommy Armour in a best ball event, scoring individually lower than either of the internationalists.

Bill Brandy, Akron, the Ohio public links champion, won the Ohio intercollegiate champion last year while playing with Heidelberg college.

Oliver Transue, Canton, medalist last year in the state amateur, and as fine a young golfer as will be found in the state. Formerly a member of the Yale university team.

Eddie Meister, Cleveland, the Ohio intercollegiate champion; the northeast Ohio interscholastic champion and a member of the Cleveland Canterbury team.

Carlin Short, Akron, a junior member of the Cleveland district father and son championship team, who finished third in the recent Ohio intercollegiate.

Nelson Kueyler, Cincinnati, medalist in the state championship in 1932 at Canton Brookside, and runner-up to Hamant in the recent Buckeye intercollegiate.

Bob Kepler, Dayton, a former Ohio amateur champion, who finished third in the open last summer over the Springfield course, two strokes back of Al Espinosa, and one stroke back of Denny Shute.

Johnny Ravey, Cleveland runner-up in the state public links battle the last two seasons.

Neil Ransick, Cincinnati, runner-up to Florio in 1929 championship at Canton Brookside.

GLEN BISHOP, Columbus, the state title holder in 1930; capable of developing a whirlwind game when he is right.

Raleigh W. Lee, Columbus, veteran campaigner, a stumbling block in the path of the youngsters, and a shot-maker of more than ordinary ability.

Christy W. Deibel, Youngstown, another veteran who may prove a big handicap to some of the younger contestants.

Joe M. Wells, East Liverpool, twice the Ohio champion, and not to be counted out of the running.

Byron Hunt, Columbus, the central Ohio Public Links sharpshooter; a contender in the state event last year who upset the early hope by disposing of players who were expected to be threats.

Ray T. Miller, Toledo state runner-up to Bishop in 1930; not so much a stylist as he is a golfer.

Dale M. Holwick, Canton, who has been knocking at the door of Stark county competitions for several seasons.

THEN THERE will be more than 100 other strikers, some of whom have never traveled in fast company, but all have their games soundly imbedded fundamentally, and anyone of them is capable of stemming up fast and crashing through the opposition like a fleet-footed half back.

All in all, the 30th renewal gives promise of being one of the most bitterly contested tournaments in the history of the association.

Madigan Gains Success as St. Mary's Football Coach

BY RALPH B. JORDAN
International News Service Sports Writer

One of the most remarkable coaching careers in the history of football—that of Edward Patrick (Skip) Madigan, of St. Mary's College—was emphasized recently when Madigan signed another five-year contract with the college.

Madigan, 37, is the oldest gridiron director on the Pacific Coast in point of service. The coming season will mark his thirteenth with the Galloping Gaels of St. Mary's.

No coach ever started with less than Madigan and few have gone as far. He started with nothing in the way of football material and almost nothing in the way of a college.

He now turns out All-American players, his teams rank with the nation's best and St. Mary's College has taken its place as one of the great educational institutions of the coast.

Behind that picture looms the figure of but one man—Madigan. In 1921, Madigan, a couple of years out of Notre Dame, where he was a brilliant linesman, came to St. Mary's, housed in an old red brick building in Oakland and having an enrollment of about 90.

The Saints, as they were known then, were doormats for big teams. California rolling up 121 points on them the previous year.

But a sensational renaissance set in with the advent of Madigan. The Galloping Gaels were born and they galloped into the headlines right away and stayed there. Nobody whipped a Madigan team by more than a touchdown or so and soon the Gaels were performing superman feats like bowling over the coast "greats," California, Stanford, Oregon, Southern California and Santa Clara, regularly, not to mention intercollegiate opponents, such as Fordham and Southern Methodists.

And with the teams, the college grew, until now it occupies a beautiful campus in the Menlo Valley fourteen miles from Oakland, and has a student body—restricted to college work—of nearly 1,000, with a capable, noted faculty.

The great white buildings of St. Mary's—dormitories, class room buildings, gymnasium and chapel; the playing fields, the wideleaf campus; the national fame of the Galloping Gaels—all are monuments to Madigan, a good-looking, nervous, blue-eyed Irishman, who doesn't know, and never has known, when he was beaten, and has infused the hundreds of young stalwarts who have come under his guiding hand with the same indomitable spirit.

Continuing on the subject of the six different kinds of slices; since number five—definition—the ball starts out to the right, rising at an angle higher than the lift called for by the club that is being used. The ball then begins to curve to the right.

The fault is that the club comes in contact with the ball with the face open, i. e., the toe end of the club turned back.

Cause—the hands may be set incorrectly. The left hand may be set too far under the grip or the right hand too far over or both hands may be set wrong. It may be that the hands are set correctly but not making the necessary effort to control the club face so that it meets the ball squarely.

Remedy—it is not possible to lay down any hard and fast rule as to just how everyone's hands should be set as everyone's muscular development is not the same. There are many muscles in the forearm, the pronators and supinators control the twisting of the forearm.

Nature or some peculiar occupation may have caused a certain muscle in either the right or left forearm to have become extraordinarily strong. Naturally the stronger muscle will exercise a greater influence over the turn of the forearm than the weaker. Experiment with various settings of the hands and observe its resulting effect on the ball's flight. This is the only way to determine the correct hand set for each individual.

I think a good way to start out is to set both hands so that the forks formed by the thumb and fore part of the hand point straight up at your nose. If there is a persistent tendency to slice as described in slice number five then set both hands so that the forks point more towards the right shoulder. A smoother hook is the opposite of slice number five and may be corrected by an adjustment of the hands so that the forks point more towards the direction of the left shoulder.

Before changing the set of the hands make sure that the are really at fault and not merely lazy in performing their work, which is to keep the club head through the ball and keep the club facing the desired direction of play.

SIDINGER LEADS SOFTBALL LOOP BATTING FIGHT

Calkins Chick Outfielder Steps Into First Place With .476 Average

Adding more than 200 points to his average in the last two weeks, Clarence Sidinger advanced into first place in the Class A league softball batting race with a percentage standing of .476, unofficial averages, not including Friday games, showed today.

Sidinger, Calkins chick outfielder has clouted out 10 hits in 21 trips to the plate.

Others Rank High

Robert Campbell and Arthur Borton, Mullins stars, each have averages of .500 but have been to bat only 16 and 12 times, respectively. Averages of the week include only the more active hitters who have appeared at the plate 20 or more times.

Joe Kelley, 1932 league batting champ, is clouting the ball at a .444 clip in 18 trips to the plate while other players, who have also appeared in less games than the leaders, are also hitting for high averages.

Twing Seeds (Hardware) and Forney (Deming) rank high in the standings with a .434 each.

McFeeley Leads Scoring

George McFeeley, Calkins slabster, is ahead in run-scoring with an even dozen, followed by Campbell (Mullins) and P. Schuller (Legion) with 10 each.

Magic of Former Bat Boy Brings Stars Out of Slump

BY LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sports Writer

New York, famed as the City of Noises, heard a new kind of outcry during the month of May.

It was a sort of agonizing moan, piercing and insistent like the call of the margin clerk, deep like the rumble of a subway express, and like the groans of unwary pedestrians, it came at stated intervals.

Noticing that it was heard only between the hours of 3 and 5 p. m., investigators finally traced it to Yankee Stadium and thence to the vocal chords of Hungry Lou Gehrig and Babe Ruth.

Home Run Famine

The cause was the Great Home Run Famine of 1933. Neither of the home run twins had strutted their stuff since April 30. Their batting averages were dwindling like the bankroll of a sailor on shore leave. Pitchers who for years had faced them with fear and trembling, began setting the sluggers down with monotonous regularity, and then giving them the horse laugh. Gehrig, fretful, began fighting the ball, which made it worse. Ruth, sarcastic, made to beat out a bunt one afternoon to get to first base.

They tried everywhere to break the jinx. Ruth made a point of stepping on second base on his way from the outfield to the bench. Then he and Louie warmed up with a different player every day. Both are time-honored cures for slumps, but neither did any good. Gehrig, who has batted over 300 for seven consecutive seasons, apprehensively recalled the story of Moses and the Egyptians who had seven fat years, and then seven lean ones.

Then the Babe had the club trainer rub his legs with seven different kinds of liniment, a different brand every day in the week. No good. The trainer, pointing out that the trouble was mental, decided to rub Babe's head instead of his feet. So he massaged the Ruthian dome with olive oil. No soap.

Gehrig, experimented with all kinds of bats. There wasn't a home run in any of em. He carried a rabbits foot, and consulted a famed Harlem Yogi. But every luck charm failed.

The Hero Enters

Little Eddie Bennett, who lost his job as Yankee bat boy when injured in an automobile accident a year ago, read about the alarming slump of his idols and decided his presence was needed to chase the jinx. For years, he had cured their slump. So he hobbled to the Yanks' dressing room on the afternoon of May 23, and solemnly tapped Lou and the Babe with his magic crutch.

"There," he said, "that'll do it."

Babe and Lou, homeless for more than three weeks were encouraged, but not overly so—for the rival hurler that way was Oral Hildebrand, who had won all of his six stars for Cleveland. But in the very first inning, Ruth knocked the ball into the right field bleachers. Gehrig duplicated the feat two innings later, and the Great Home Run Famine was over, the worst slump either ever had experienced.

It was a curious thing that the slump began for both

A Boy and His Pals

In this golden-haired boy taking care of the dogs, or are the dogs taking care of him? Either way they make an excellent picture. The boy is Sonny Raymond Bishop, Jr., and the dogs, Great Danes, are "Top Sergeant Cherry" and "Tiger King," exhibits at the Morris and Essex Kennel Club show at Madison, N. J. Nearly 3,000 dogs were entered in the show, which was held at the estate of Mrs. M. Hartley Dodge, noted society sportswoman.

buildings here. The Gurney block on South Broadway was one of them. Where this block now stands was at one time a Friends' burying ground.

Looking back over more than three-score years, there have been many changes in the city since Mr. Butz came here. At that time the building at the corner of Main st. and Broadway, known as old court hall, was the largest here. A few years ago, it was replaced by the First National Bank building, now known as East State st. and South Broadway.

Used Plank Road

Among other changes he mentioned was that there was an old cooper shop where the Baptist church now stands, and that the building now occupied by the Lease Drug company store and the Ohio Bell Telephone company was erected on what was then the lawn of the old Farquhar homestead.

Mr. Butz laughed heartily as he recalled the old plank road which was built out on what is now North Lincoln ave., to Canfield. He said one could hear the feet of the horses clattering on the boards for miles.

There were no paved streets in those days and Mr. Butz described the first few blocks of what is now East State st. as a "mud hole."

Raised wooden sidewalks were used and from these were planks into the homes.

As he depicted Salem's first street cars he burst into laughter again. They were small boxy affairs and the motorman had to stand on the outside, braving the elements, there being no vestibule for his protection from the cold and rains.

There were no electric lights or gas in the city when the Butz family came here and the homes were lighted with oil lamps.

Killing Frost On June 5

The aged man has a vivid recollection of the killing frost of June 5, 1859, when crops, fruits and all growing things were almost entirely destroyed by the lowest temperature, either before or since that time, for the same season of the year. He was helping to build a big barn at that time and it was so cold that he had to work with gloves on.

Always interested in music, Mr. Butz was a member of the Salem Choral union, organized 51 years ago, and he is one of the few surviving members of the unit.

He is a member of Amity lodge No. 124, I. O. O. F., and a past noble grand of the lodge, and a member of the carpenters' local here. His church activities included teaching in the Sunday school for a number of years. He taught one class for 12 years.

His father, Samuel Butz, a Civil war veteran, who died in the service, was buried in the south. Mr. Butz is one of the oldest sons of veterans in the country. His first vote was cast for Abraham Lincoln and he has voted for 18 presidents.

Mrs. Babb, Mr. Butz's daughter, who arranged the celebration, is a talented pianist, and widely known in musical circles in this city, and is also a member of the Alliance Music club. Her husband, Harold Babb, is a well known soloist.

50 Couples Attend Unemployed Dance

More than 50 couples attended the dance given by the Salem Unemployed league at the Memorial building Friday night.

Lodge's old-timers orchestra provided music.

Another dance will be sponsored by the League at 8 p. m. next Friday.

Kansas Jailbreak the Result of Loopholes in State Laws

WILBUR UNDERHILL VARDEN KIRK PRATHER.

The desperate bid for freedom made by eleven convicts of the Kansas State Penitentiary at Lansing focuses attention on the divergence of State laws that made it possible. Wilbur Underhill, the leader of the break, had committed two murders in Oklahoma, whence he broke jail while serving a life sentence, when he killed Merle Colver, a Wichita, Kan., policeman. Rather than go back to Oklahoma, where there is capital punishment, to face trial for murder, Underhill chose to plead guilty to murder in Kansas, where there is no capital punishment, thus drawing a life sentence. In making their break, Underhill and his companions were well aware that they had all to gain and nothing to lose, for all were hiders. So also had they slain Varden Kirk Prather and the two guards they had taken as hostages, the law could do no more to them—they already were serving the maximum sentence in Kansas.

Varied Program of Films Coming This Week to State

THE cutest baby in all Hollywood will be seen at the State theater Sunday and Monday as co-star with the debonair Maurice Chevalier.

This baby is not the blond feminine type that usually plays opposite the French star—but a one-year-old bunch of sweetness called Baby Leroy.

The story is "A Bedtime Story" and besides the two aforementioned there are eleven Twelves, Adrienne Ames, Edward Everett Horton and Earle Fox.

Leroy Picked From Thousands

Baby Leroy, whose smile has won the hearts of the nation, was chosen by Chevalier himself over several thousand babies. . . . Finally from the thousands were picked two hundred of the very finest and most intelligent and from these came this adorable infant. . . .

There is a thrilling air film scheduled for the theater on Tuesday and Wednesday. . . . It is called "Air Mail" and includes these stars in its excellent cast—Ralph Bellamy, Gloria Stuart, Pat O'Brien, Slim Summerville and Lillian Bond. . . .

Story of Mail Carriers

This is a gripping story of intrepid pilots who daily defy death and danger so that "the mail may go through" and it marks the first time these unsung heroes have had their romantic, adventurous lives depicted on the screen. . . .

The king of horror films—Boris Karloff—will be seen Thursday only in "The Mummy" with David Manners, Zita Johann and Walter Byron in the leading supporting roles. . . .

The story is laid in Egypt and concerns a group of exhibition hunters who find unlooked-for terror and crime in a land they thought held only relics and treasures. . . .

"Elmer the Great", starring Joe E. Brown, is the feature Friday and Saturday. . . .

KELLER, BLACK COLLIDE AGAIN

Old College Rivals Will Race Again In Meet At Dayton Today

DAYTON, June 3.—Jack Keller, Ohio State university's world champion hurdler, faced his old teammate, John Black, in the highlight of the annual Ohio American Athletic Union games today.

Black, who used to be Keller's rival in school, now carries the colors of the Cincinnati Athletic club. The races possibly were the last for Keller, since he has announced his intention to hang up his track shoes after he graduates this month. A hot race was in prospect.

Events on the program are: The 100, 200 and 400 meter dashes; 110 and 200 meter hurdles; 800, 1,500 and 3,000 meter runs; 3,000 meter medley relay; pole vault, high jump, discus, javelin, shot put and broad jump.

Two special events, a 60 meter dash and a running broad jump, were arranged for 16-year-old high school youths.

Greeley and Bayard Granges In Program

Greeley and Bayard granges presented a program of music, readings, talks and plays at a meeting of Willow Grove grange Friday evening at the hall, North Georgetown rd.

This was one of the chain programs, a county feature being carried out by the granges this year. Approximately 300 were in attendance.

Three applications for membership were received.

At a special session of Willow Grove Grange tonight the granges will observe its 25th anniversary, and silver certificates will be presented members who have been in the grange continuously for 25 years.

More Names Taken For Forestry Army

LISBON, June 3.—Anticipating another call for recruits for federal reforestation work, additional applications are being filed at the office of the county relief commission here. Township trustees have forwarded additional names, while other young men have filed individual applications.

From the recent quota sent from this county, five on the active list were rejected because of bad teeth. Their places were filled by selections from an alternate list.
